ROBBED BY HIS BRIDE. - A short time ago an attache of the United States tug Fortune named Ipson married a young Swedish girl named Caroline Eculand in Portsmouth, Va., and as soon as the ceremony was over the father of the bride burried the groom off | the father of the bride hurried the groom of and would not let him remain with his new ly made wife until he could procure his discharge from the service, the father promising to go to Washington the next day to get it. Ipson gave him money to defray the expenses of himself and daughter to Washington have been been defined by the could be an expense of himself and daughter to Washington have been been defined by the could be an expense of himself and daughter to Washington have been defined by the could be a processor frame dwelling and lot and store adjoint and some and lot and store in well and the service of the could be a processor frame dwelling and lot see e.e. The unsuspecting groom then returned to his vessel, counting the hours when he would be a free man and could join his wife. The father and daughter left the evening after her marriage for Washington. For ten days the anxious husband waited for news, but none came. It now turns out that Eculand and his daughter hefore leaving home had broken daughter before leaving home had broken open the trunk of the groom and took out a large amount of money and carried that with them. On reaching Washington they took the train for Chicago, where they are now. Since their arrival in that city the girl telegraphed to a former lover on the Mayflower who was enamored with her, and whom she knew had about $900, to come on to her at once. He turned the telegram over to the husband of the girl, who concluded to let his money go and is glad to es-cape probably a worse fate.

"BOBBY, THROW UP YOUR HANDS!"-Frank Leland, twelve years old, living with his parents at Jenkintown, a suburb of Philadelphia, went into the fields Thursday with Robbie Printer, eight years old, to practice shooting at a target with a rifle his father had just bought him. The last cartridge only snapped, and when they pulled it out of the gun they found the shell was empty. "It's a biank," said Master Leland, as he put it back in the barrel. "Bobby, throw up your hands, and when I fire you're a dead man."

Young Leland covered his friend with his tifle and pulled the trigger. There was a report and poor little Frinter fell to the ground, exclaiming: "Frank I'm shot; it wasn't a blank."

Frank Leland fell over his body and wept and then ran to a brook near by and getting some water bathed the boy's face, but he had become unconscious. The child was removed to the inn of his uncle, Arthur Johnston, where he died on Friday during an operation by Drs. Hern and Harwitz. The coroner's jury condemned the practice of allowing children to use firearms and advised prosecution against Leland. Leland, twelve years old, living with his parents
